BECAUSE
SOMETIMES
HURTS
53 trips were taken to assist emergency responders and aid workers worldwide

45 organizations received our counseling, training, consulting and research services

We expanded our security training partnerships: 809 staff participated in 21 security training programs to prepare them for high-risk environments

2,300 individuals participated in online or in-person training workshops

We provided management consultation for a pilot training program addressing sexual harassment, exploitation, and abuse in humanitarian environments

We added French and Spanish speaking clinicians to our team

We piloted a program for two leading organizations addressing the homelessness crisis in urban centers

1,169 responders took the Headington Institute Resilience Inventory (HIRI) to identify factors promoting resilience

More than 1,000 hours of psychological services were provided remotely to those with no other resource

908 individuals received assessments to prepare them for challenging deployments

More than 350 hours of management consultation were provided worldwide & 222,000 visitors accessed free resources from our online platforms

THE NUMBER AND SEVERITY OF HUMANITARIAN EMERGENCIES GREW THIS YEAR. RESPONDERS WERE THERE WHEN WE NEEDED THEM, HELPING COMMUNITIES RECOVER.

BECAUSE WE KNOW WHAT THEY NEED TO STAY STRONG, WE EXPANDED OUR SERVICES AND RESOURCES TO PROMOTE THEIR RESILIENCE AND TRAUMA RECOVERY.
